

Lines by an Old Man

Time has dropped me like a plum
Into the hands of strangers.

This race of aliens stares
And wonders what galaxy I'm from

As I fumble for a long-lost pocketwatch
And ask directions to a ditch.

That ditch was a palace, in '54.
My maps are different from yours.